

For advisor use only. Not for client distribution

Group Family Critical Illness coverage now available

We're pleased to announce that Family CI coverage is now available as a valuable add-on to our Group Critical Illness coverage.¹

What you need to know:

Group CI provides eligible dependent children with 50% of employee benefits paid if they are diagnosed with a covered condition. Our Family CI coverage is an extension of our current Group CI product (plan member and eligible dependent children) in which coverage extends to an eligible active spouse. Coverage for the spouse includes 50% of employee benefits for covered conditions.

To learn more about the benefits for clients, refer to our Family CI launch communication →

Next steps

You can quote RBC Insurance Group Family CI coverage for:

- Prospective clients via a request to quote
- Existing clients who have Group CI and would like expanded coverage to include an employee's spouse
- Existing clients who are looking to quote either Group CI or Group Family CI

We encourage you to speak with your clients about how this coverage can enhance their group benefit plan and help their employees reduce the financial impact of a life-altering critical illness. To support your conversations, refer to and share this brochure with your clients.

New! We redesigned and enhanced the RBC Insurance® Group Advisor Guide. Refer to this document for detailed information about our products, administration, advisor support and more!

Please note:

- List Bill is a mandatory requirement
- Life and EHC coverage must be included to quote CI coverage
- If a plan design includes Family CI, coverage is mandatory for plan members with a dependent spouse

Questions?

If you have further questions about how RBC Insurance group benefits can help your clients, please contact your local Group Sales Consultant at 1-855-264-2174.

¹ Group Critical Illness Insurance from RBC Insurance is underwritten by Allstate Insurance Company of Canada. Allstate Benefits is a trademark of Allstate Insurance Company, used under license by Allstate Insurance Company of Canada.